Hello,

Can you spare a few minutes before Monday 2 June to share your experience of involving people you work with in evaluating your services and projects? We are producing a workbook to guide people through the process of involving people they work with in evaluation.

Your feedback will really help make this guide useful to organisations with little or no experience of involving people. Even if you do not have time to complete it all your comments will be very important to us.

In this issue:

Draft workbook - Lessons from Involving the people you work with in evaluation

Draft workbook - Lessons from Involving the people you work with in evaluation

We want to produce a practical tool which will help organisations to plan why, when and how to involve the people they work with in evaluation. As part of our work with Self Directed Support Independent Support Organisations, funded by the Scottish Government, we have started to develop this workbook.

If you work for a voluntary organisation (of whatever size and working in any field) and are interested in involving the people you work with in evaluation, please help us to test and refine our workbook by downloading the draft version from our website here.

Please return your completed workbook by Monday 2nd June 2014.
